Communications Hardware Failure

At 11.58 pm on Wednesday, 1 September, a communications network problem was experienced when a primary core router attempted to reload. This caused a temporary disconnection to most Members' terminals for approximately 1 minute, while terminals were re-routed through the Exchange's redundant router in accordance with the system's backup and recovery design.

The investigation into the cause of this problem has been given the highest priority with the Exchange's hardware providers.
